The Camargue Restaurant

A place full of history... “I was dreaming about peace. I have discovered the oasis of the friendship, paradise of light and shade. Here, time stops, we are always 20 years old...”

These words, posted at the restaurant’s reception, are the ones of Jean-Claude Brialy. This historic place of the medieval city of Aigues-Mortes was inaugurated 48 years ago by the President of the period, Mister Georges Pompidou which stayed at that time in ‘La Grande-Motte’.

Since then, this historic restaurant of the city had received the visit from prestigious hosts such as Romy Schneider, Brigitte Bardot, Claude Brasseur, Alain Delon... Posters on the wall come to testify the visit of these famous names, which contributed to the fame of the establishment.

The local fame ‘Manitas de Platas’ fired the patio during numerous parties, participating to the authentic charm of this unique place.

On the Menu, Bul Meat Stew, ‘Rouille of Aigues-Mortes’ (a kind of “bouillabaisse” with octopus), garlic mayonnaise and other local and Mediterranean specialties will bring you in a culinary trip in Occitan earth.

Your evening at the restaurant “La Camargue” will be animated by Gypsies singers and musicians!
